

The Seattle Times

Winner of Nine Pulitzer Prizes

Thursday, May 23, 2002

Eastside Digest

ImageX lauded by Chamber

BELLEVUE — Kirkland-based e-printing company ImageX was named Eastside Business of the Year by the Bellevue Chamber of Commerce.

The company manages online information, ordering, printing and distribution of company materials and is one of the region's fastest-growing companies, with 400 employees.

Bellevue-based DigiMine won the award for innovative technology. It stores and analyzes data from e-commerce customers, providing clients with information on customer behavior and demographics.

Costco received the award for corporate citizenship for its multimillion-dollar contributions. Bellevue Community College was recognized for contributions to Eastside economic development.

Friends of the Issaquah Salmon Hatchery received the award for tourism, and the Eastside Innovative Service Award went to Terabeam, a Kirkland company that allows companies to send information by infrared laser.